

Of Treaties and Agendas

By Patrick Wyett

I'm reminded of an old saying, "There's more than one way to skin a cat." My apologies to you animal lovers for stirring up such a visceral image, but there is a point, I assure you. Barry's satanic agenda continues to push forward despite timing setbacks, setbacks precipitated by strong resistance from the American people on a couple of important policy issues: Syria and gun control. It must be alarming to the powers-that-be that not all of us are as dumb as they think we are.

Since the full-scale propaganda campaign of lies and deceit hasn't worked, which, by the way, Barry takes as a personal insult to his narcissistic ego; he has to resort to other means. Amongst those means are treaties. First there's Syria. The desire to attack Syria hasn't been abated, only delayed. A sort of backdoor strategy to justify an attack on Syria has been utilized throughout history.

It's simple and our particular variation goes like this: Either goad Syria into attacking Israel or Turkey, which we have mutual defense treaties with, or stage an attack against either of the two and blame it on Syria. In such an instance, we are treaty-bound to defend our ally with military action against the "aggressor," Syria.

The beauty of such a plan at this point is that it's no longer a choice: It's a national obligation. The ultimate solution for, pass-the-buck Barry.

Another variation is to launch an attack against US forces abroad or one on US soil and blame Syria. The US/Saudi/Turkey axis has already staged a chemical weapons attack in Syria and blamed it on Bashar Assad's government. What's one more false flag to this unholy alliance?

War is still coming in the Middle East—just the timetable has been altered.

What the US has been actively engaging in is the widespread promotion and active support of terrorism, through and by which we've perpetrated overt acts of war against sovereign nations throughout the region. Such sponsorship used to be more covert, now it's shamelessly out in the open. Rest assured, there will be an accounting. Unfortunately but predictably, Israel will once again bear the consequences of our meddling. Or maybe betrayal would be a better descriptor of US actions.

How can Barry bypass the Second Amendment? By treaty, of course. On Wednesday, September 25, 2013, US Secretary-of-State John Kerry signed the UN Small Arms Treaty. I find it sickeningly hypocritical that this administration, who's sold small arms to Mexican drug cartels via Operation Fast and Furious and continues to supply all manner of military weapons to legions of barbaric, Muslim butchers, signs a treaty that supposedly cuts down on international arms trafficking; the very activity that has Barry, Eric Holder, Hillary and company up to their eyeballs in human blood.

In review, Barry supplies small arms and more to the absolute dregs of humanity to facilitate unimaginable slaughter and misery throughout the world, yet wants to disarm you, by international treaty if possible, in blatant violation of the Constitution. Call me old-fashioned, but such actions in times past would be labeled as treason and crimes against humanity. Some claim that signing this US sovereignty-destroying treaty is merely symbolic, that it has no chance of passing the ratification process in the Senate, which requires 2/3 majority to pass, in other words, 67 of the 100 senators to agree to. Is it?

The Federal Reserve Act of 1913 was passed at the Christmas recess, when most of the Senate had left the capital for home. Yet a few remained in Washington DC. They just happened to be there to agree to a unanimous consent to pass the Federal Reserve Act, which would not have passed a full vote in the senate. Not quite constitutional, but who cares, it worked. Remember the saying about the cat.

Who knows what other arcane options are on the table. You think Barry could find a federal judge or two to go along with him? That's the kind of judges he's been appointing these past five years, including to the Supreme Court. Maybe a state of emergency is to be declared for any variety of reasons or excuses. Martial law would be implemented, the Constitution illegally suspended, never to be reinstated.

Dictator Barry could then declare the UN Small Arms Treaty, which Kerry signed on his behalf to be in full effect, asking for the UN's help in making the US compliant with the treaty. Hundreds of thousands of foreign troops in our country, here right now, would be used to enforce whatever interpretation Barry comes up with. Want to guess what that might be? Yep, full and total gun confiscation.

This is part of the agenda. Treaties are the solution: Just something to think about, pray about and prepare for.

“My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children” (Hosea 4:6).

The knowledge is available. Understand what's happening and why. Also understand that your only salvation is through the blood of Jesus -- nothing and no one else. God will ultimately win this 6000-year-war, unconditionally and with total finality. We just have to get from here to there. Keep the faith. You are loved and cherished by the Creator of the universe, He who sent his Son to die for you. Call on Him.

“Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also” (John 14:1-3).
